Time saving is a major priority for our clients

Ausco Modular building solutions is growing in popularity with healthcare providers because of a reputation for consistently delivering reductions in:

- Building times
- On-site safety risks
- Disruptions to patients and local residents
- On-site waste and dust.

Ausco Modular General Manager - Modular Sale, Ben Knight said rapid build times allows health providers to be operational faster and as a result deliver better medical services.

"Time saving is a major priority for our clients, as it helps them to achieve reductions in their wait lists and greater room availability," Mr Knight said.

"Faster construction and a majority off-site build also means less traffic entering and exiting sites and therefore less inconvenience to neighbouring businesses and residents."

Ausco Modular recently partnered with fitout and refurbishment specialists SHAPE Group to deliver and install 84 modular units for Canberra Hospital, allowing patients and medical staff to occupy the Hospital well ahead of schedule.

The 5000m<sup>2</sup> new facilities includes x-ray rooms, office space and meeting rooms, reception and waiting area, consultation rooms, rehabilitation gymnasium, operating theatre and recovery rooms, ICU and commercial kitchen.

Constructed off-site in factory-controlled settings, Ausco modular buildings do not suffer weather delays like in-situ equivalents and will generate substantially smaller amounts of on-site dust and waste—minimising impacts on building times, existing facilities and patients.

Ausco Modular employs qualified tradespeople and all factories that work with Ausco have achieved ISO9001, ISO14001 and AS 4801 accreditations through independent industry regulators for quality, environmental and safety.

Not to be confused with outdated demountable buildings, Ausco's buildings are made from quality products, are aesthetically pleasing and can be custom-made to suit all needs.

Delivering full turnkey modular solutions through a unique 360 Degree Service, Ausco Modular has an extensive network across Australia and longstanding history of providing quality made-to-order modular buildings for the healthcare industry.
