Maroondah City Council identified that the previous fifty-year-old pavilion, had been outgrown by the Heathmont Jets Football, Cricket Club and Netball Club, particularly following a recent growth in female sport participation.

Ausco Modular was engaged by the council to design and deliver a new modular pavilion with a focus on inclusiveness and accessibility for all abilities.

As well as the clubs involved, the pavilion is now home to the Sport and Life Training (SALT) community group, and the facility will be used by the community, including local schools and social groups.

The two-storey facility includes four unisex compliant changerooms with cubicle shower facilities for player privacy, umpire changerooms, a medical/trainer's room, storage areas, canteen/kitchen, and a large multi-purpose social function area with bar and cool room on the upper level with internal lift access.

The new modular facilities are receiving very positive feedback from the council and sporting clubs.
